Dick:

I found this in my email - thought it may be relevant to Erik's matter.

Erik sent this to me after I left a voicemail for him from outside the office after hearing that press were calling our office for him – I asked him to tell me what was going on. Apparently, this email was sent a couple hours after Erik met w/ Cindy.

Best regards,

John Zakhem, Esq.

Subject: Cindy Acree

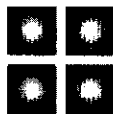

Today, I had a brief meeting with Cindy Acree. After I helped her move some furniture in her office and talked about some people that we mutually know through church, I mentioned that I was trying to get a hold of her and left several message about some fundraising stuff. I did not talk specifically about money, how much, or from who, only that I wanted to talk with her about it and she wasn't returning my calls.

She told that she thought it was inappropriate to talk about these things at the Capitol, and I said, "Fine" and moved on.

I mentioned the upcoming leadership vote, and she asked me if I was a lobbyist. I told her that I was among other things. She said that the leadership was something that shouldn't be discussed with lobbyists. I said fine, and said that we were looking forward to working with her on health issues in the upcoming session and that we (the chiropractors) thought she had the best views on health care among all the Republican candidates and we were very excited to see her at the Capitol.

She asked for a business card, presumably to contact me later.

I left, and that was that.
